Glenwood.

Rev. Sergeant filled Bro. Sterret's pulpit on Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock. He is interested in the preacher's Aid Society. His sermon was along that line. He is going around soliciting a fund equal to $400-600, whose interest will be sufficient with the individual donations given by the members of the M. E. church or any other church member to give the worn out ministers a dollar a day pension after their productive period of life has passed.

No service at the U. P. church on last Sabbath day. The members attended the Tabernacle services at Rushville.

The people are getting warmed up to their political interests. Some are getting over anxious about questioning others as to how they are going to vote. At times they meet with a response that sends a chill running down their spine, causing them to take quinine to break up the fever.

Master Harrold Harlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Harlow, while playing with two hammers and hitting one on the other broke a piece of steel off of one of the poles of the hammer which flew into the boy's eye. The boy was taken to Indianapolis where a specialist removed the piece of steel. Mr. and Mrs. Harlow remained with him until the boy recovered from the operation and brought him home Sunday evening.

Many visitors viewed the new school building. It probably will be ready for occupancy next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Cameron entertained company over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Alexander entertained Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Britt, of Everton, Ind., and Mr. Alexander, a druggist of the Denison block, Indianapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Winchell of Indianapolis spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Lew Matney.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Timberman spent Sunday in the country.

Mr. Garrison is suffering from a severe attack of typhoid fever.

Mrs. Katie Mapes and son Maurice spent one day last week with Mrs. da Coon of South Orange.

Miss Jessie Murphy rendered the very beautiful solo, "My Father Knows," at the close of the E. L. Service Sunday evening. Miss Jessie manifests some very splendid cultivation in the art of vocal music.

Carthage.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Zion and daughter, Miss Ruby, of Knightstown, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Newby and son were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. Hubbard Sunday.

Emory Binford was in Rushville Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Hood spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Hood of Indianapolis.

Chester Hill and Mrs. Viola Linscott visited Roy Linseott at Plainfield last Friday.

E. L. Heaps, of Sheridan, has purchased C. E. Smelser's jewelry store and took possession yesterday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Heaps will locate here as soon as they can find a suitable house.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lane, of Charlestown, and Newell Phelps, of Knightstown, spent Sunday afternoon with E. N. Miner and family.

Miss Bessie Smith was in Indianapolis last Thursday and Friday.

Sam Denton is a visitor of Indianapolis.

Mrs. E. N. Miner and daughter Florence were in Indianapolis from Wednesday until Saturday.

Henry Henley, of Richmond, was at home over Sunday visiting friends.

Miss Romona Norris was in Rushville Monday.

Forest Parrish, of Highwood, Ill., spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Iriam Parrish.

Charles Johnson, of New Castle, is visiting his mother, Mrs. Ann Johnson.

Mrs. Peter Holan, 11501 Buckeye Rd, Cleveland, O., says: "Yes, indeed I can recommend Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. My little boy had a bad case of whooping cough, some times he was blue in the face. I gave him Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, and it had a remarkable effect and cured him in a short time." Society.

About forty-five of Miss Grace Clifton's friends pleasantly surprised her at her country home five miles northeast of this city Tuesday evening. Refreshments were served at a late hour after which all departed reporting a good time.

Those present were the Misses Frances Carson, Hazel Hall, Myra Gordon, Cera Paviaish, Beatrice Austin, Ethel Gordon, Opal Kiser, Nora Hall, Marie Kiser, Edna Hood, Mary Peters, Dorothy Zorne, Blanche Foster, Florence Walker, Merle Ging and the Messrs. Donald Kiser, Roy Wiley, Kanerda Jones, Carroll Clifton, George Peters, Homer Hall, Lloyd Nelson, Gus Walker, Levy Shortridge, Orville Martin, Willie Donald Foster, Rea Ging, Paul Foster, Wilmer Biggs, Thomas Martin, Verne Bell, Eugene Nelson, Herschel Peters, Cen Clifton, Chase Jarrett, Gale Zorne, Fred Mohler, Edward Bell, Charlie Hires and Gilbert Austin.

J. G. Criswell, a painter living at 540 North Mulberry St., Hagerstown, Md., states: "I had kidney trouble with a severe pain across my back, and could hardly get up after sitting down. I took Foley Kidney Pills and soon found the pain left my back. I could get up and down with ease, and the bladder action was more regular and normal." Try them at F. B. Johnson & Co. AMUSEMENTS

Indianapolis will have its annual festival of grand opera in English at the Shubert-Murat Theatre, Indianapolis, opening next Monday, October 14th. The Aborn English Grand Opera Company, whose engagement last season was a complete artistic success, comes again to present a still larger list of offerings, including eight operas in its eight performances, particulars of which will be announced in the Indianapolis daily papers.

This is the only opera company presenting a repertoire of classics in English in America, and will probably be the only organization of its kind to visit Indiana this season. It contains the best selection of American Artists available, a large chorus and an orchestra of soloists who have won approval with the Aborn forces at the Boston Opera House, the Brooklyn Academy of Music and other famous temples of operatic art. Complete and elaborate productions are carried in four large baggage cars for the eight operas of their repertoire.

When this aggregation appeared here last season they captivated the music-loving public at once, playing capacity audiences during their engagement. The press and public alike were surprised at the uniform excellence of their offerings with no advance in the regular theatre scale.

PHALACROSIS WAS TOO MUCH
The Jury Decided That the Defendant Had Something the Matter With His Head.

The case was one of assault and battery, and one of the witnesses was a local doctor whom the prosecuting solicitor proceeded to bully, suggesting that he was prejudiced in favor of the defendant and had wilfully distorted his evidence in his favor. The doctor denied this, and went on to say that the defendant was suffering from "phalacrosis." The word caused a sensation in court, and, asked to define the disease, the doctor described it as "a sort of chronic disease of an inflammatory nature which affects certain cranial tissues."

Asked if it affected the mind, the doctor said he was not posing as an expert, but he had known some persons when suffering from the disease to become raving maniacs, and others merely foolish; some showed destructive and pugilistic tendencies, while many others had suffered for years and had never shown any mental abnormalities. He refused to say anything further, and the jury promptly acquitted the accused; because, as the foreman explained, "Doctor said there was something the matter with his head."

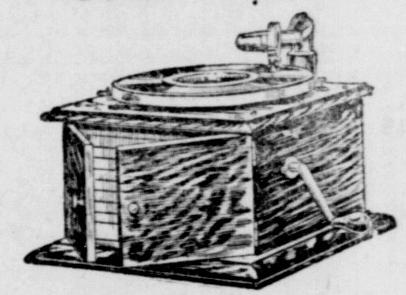

When the case was over the prosecutor sought enlightenment as to the mysterious disease, and found that "phalacrosis" meant—baldness!

Geo. T. Craddock, Rubie, Ark., says: "I was bothered with lumbago for seven years so I could not work. I tried several kinds of kidney medicine which gave me little or no relief. Two bottles of Foley Kidney Pills cured me and now I can do any kind of work. I cheerfully recommend them to my friends." F. B. Johnson & Co. (Advertisement.)

WHO FURNISHED WILSON'S FUNDS

Details of Pre-Convention Campaign Brought Out.

OTHER CANDIDATES MENTIONED

Senate Committee Investigating the Source of Campaign Funds Gets at the Facts Relating to the Financing of Respective Booms of Candidates Wilson, Harmon, Underwood and Clark Before Baltimore Convention.

Washington, Oct. 15.—The senate committee, in a brisk fire of questions, laid bare the sources of contributions to the pre-convention campaign contributions of Woodrow Wilson, Judge Harmon and Oscar Underwood. It was a Democratic field day.

The committee began with W. F. McCombs, chairman of the Democratic national committee, who testified that $203,565 was expended to nominate Governor Wilson at Baltimore. This testimony developed the interesting fact that Governor Wilson had a larger campaign fund than any of his rivals for the nomination.

Lieutenant Governor Hugh L. Nichols of Ohio, who followed Mr. McCombs, testified to expenditures in behalf of Governor Harmon's pre-convention campaign, slightly in excess of $150,000. Of this sum $146,000 was spent through the national bureau, of which Lieutenant Governor Nichols was chairman, and approximately $5,000 through a local organization at Columbus.

Senator J. H. Bankhead of Alabama exposed the Underwood contributions and expenditures to the view of the committee. He collected and spent approximately $50,000 in an effort to bring about the nomination of Mr. Underwood for president.

Champ Clark's pre-convention fund had already been given as about $50,000.

Some of the Contributors.

Among the disclosures of the day following stand out most conspicuously: Thomas F. Ryan contributed $77,000 to Governor Harmon's campaign fund and $35,000 to Representative Underwood's; James J. Hill contributed $15,000 to Governor Harmon's campaign; Cyrus H. McCormick of the International Harvester company contributed $12,500 to the pre-convention campaign of Governor Wilson, but it was explained that this contribution was made as a friend of Princeton university and its former president, and not as the representative of the harvester company. Nevertheless the Bull Moose followers seized upon it as a precious morsel and will immediately use it as a political counter-irritant to the charges hurled at Colonel Roosevelt about George W. Perkins's activities.

Cleveland H. Dodge of New York appears as the largest personal contributor to Governor Wilson's campaign fund. His personal contribution was $51,300. Other large contributions to Governor Wilson's fund were: Henry Morganthau, $20,000; William F. McCombs, $11,000; Frederick C. Penfield, $12,000; Abraham L. Elkus, $12,500; Harvey Thomas, $6,500; William G. McAdoo, about $5,000; Jacob H. Schiff, $2,500.

Alton B. Parker, Democratic nominee for president in 1904, and George F. Parker, who was at the head of the Democratic literary bureau that year, furnished the committee a new clue. Judge Parker testified that he was informed by Daniel S. Lamont, late in the campaign of 1904, that there had been a meeting of representatives of big corporate interests, who had agreed to combine their influence and raise the necessary money to elect Colonel Roosevelt. Colonel Lamont named to Judge Parker as the men who had participated in the conference the following: James H. Stillman, at that time president of the National City bank; E. H. Harriman, Robert Bacon, Charles F. Brooker, Daniel G. Reid and Henry C. Frick. He said he was prevented from making the names public at the time because Colonel Lamont objected to being drawn into the affair publicly. This was the first time that Judge Parker ever disclosed the source of his information on which he based his well-known charges against Roosevelt in 1904.

It is probable that the committee will call all of the men named who are still living, and Mr. Harriman is the only one who is dead. Daniel G. Reid is already under pledge to give his testimony. Judge Parker's testimony created something of a sensation.

IDENTIFICATION OF IMPORTANT PAPERS

Progress of Trial of Alleged Dynamiters.

Indianapolis Oct. 15.—Former employee of the iron workers' international union identified much correspondence, alleged to have passed between John J. McNamara and various defendants in the dynamite conspiracy trial now in progress before Judge Anderson and a jury in the federal court. The identification was a part of the government's prosecution of the case. Entries in the books of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers were identified, showing that $1,000 a month was put into what was known as an "organizing fund," which the government will later try to establish was drawn on by J. J. McNamara in paying the expenses of the dynamite conspiracy. Identification also was made of several $1,000 checks, which were payable to J. J. McNamara, and which represented the transfer of the general funds of the union to this special fund.

Public Utilities Company Permitted to Go Ahead.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 15.—Circuit Judge William Blakey has sustained the demurral of the Public Utilities company of this city to the suit brought by Prosecutor Sappenfield for a dissolution of a $16,000,000 consolidation of the Evansville & Southern Indiana Traction company, the Evansville Gas and Electric Light company and the Public Service company. He declared that the consolidation was in accordance with the statutes. Opposition to the merger developed because it destroyed competition in electric light. Prosecutor Sappenfield has not determined whether he will file an amended complaint.

Beveridge and the Star.

Albert J. Beveridge's hypocrisy is infectious. Witness the case of the Indianapolis Star which has been associated with him these few months, since the birth of the Bull Moose party, after a career of wobbling during which time it was a Republican newspaper in spots.

But the writings of its staff correspondent, who has been traveling over Indiana with Beveridge during this campaign in an automobile, are more of a case in point. Each Monday morning the Star carries a little of his "personal" stuff in which he professes to tell a little of the side of Mr. Beveridge, which the audiences do not see, possibly, on account of the glare of the limelight.

This week the correspondent devotes his column to a cheap attack

Sam Sanderson Says:

That he is not half so much concerned about the world's series as he is about where the next pumpkin is coming from.

has increased 50 per cent in that period. Do we want another dose of 1893 failures?

There were several men in Boston on the days of the world series games who opened up the office and made a bluff of working.

Over in England they think Uncle Sam is going to give John Bull his $400,000,000 canal for a Christmas present.

The final crop report gives the biggest record ever, and all the politicians are claiming the credit for it.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

T. R. AND BOSSSES.

(South Bend Tribune.)

Gov. Marshall in asserting that when Col. Roosevelt was elected governor of New York he was ineligible for that office presented no new evidence in the case. In Senator Platt's autobiography it is distinctly stated that in 1897, when the big moose was assistant secretary of the navy, he had sworn off his taxes in New York on the ground that he was a resident of the District of Columbia and that he was therefore ineligible for governor. Notwithstanding this, even though the colonel at first declared he would not remain in the fight, Roosevelt was nominated at the instance of Platt. The Indiana governor frankly says that there is nothing new in the story, declares that it has been told before, but asserts that this is an excellent time to retail it, asking what confidence the people can place in a man who runs for and accepts office to which "he knows he is ineligible."

In the first place nobody has ever accused Mr. Beveridge of being dissipated, etc., etc., while he was in college. All the charges of this character that have been brought against Mr. Beveridge have been in respect to his latter-day life. The correspondent has never attempted to offer a defense of his everyday life since he has been before the public eye. Such an attempt would be futile, and at the same time would emphasize Mr. Beveridge's shortcomings and call the voters' attention to them.

Of course, men who are acquainted with Mr. Beveridge and his past career for morality and sobriety, well know what his reputation is. Furthermore they know that the Indianapolis Star, or any of its correspondents can hoodwink the thinking people into believing that all of the Bull Moose candidate's ranting about evils that he will correct is sincere. It's all buncombe.

It will be observed that the correspondent refers to the so-called attack on Beveridge as "pretty cheap." Yet, just above the item about Beveridge appears a 763 word article about Samuel Ralston's visit to Connersville—the occasion when he neglected to tip the barber. That in itself is a highly important matter—doubtless any one will recognize that fact. Mr. Ralston forgot to tip the barber. A highly important incident that. But the Indianapolis Star, in its narrow, prudish vision, possibly has so far perverted its sensibilities in its rank partisanship during this campaign, that the men who are conducting its editorial policy, actually believe that the publication of this incident will lose votes for Ralston and make them for Beveridge. Evidently they are running a newspaper merely to make votes for Beveridge. But if the above is the case, the editors are to be forgiven, and it is to be regretted that they should descend to such a mental condition.

In 1893, when Democratic policies were in force, there were failures with liabilities of $346,779,889. In 1911, the liabilities of failures were but $191,061,665, although population

(Special Dispatch to Column)
Armageddon, Oct. 15.—Heavy and killing frost reported on the way. Due to arrive here the morning of Nov. 6.

George Ade is maintaining his reputation as Indiana's foremost humorist by attempting to be serious in writing about the Bull Moose party.

The Kokomo Tribune points out that the Chicago Tribune has bawled out the Indianapolis Star for stealing the dope from its column. The Tribune adds that it steals most of its stuff from the Frankfort Crescent, and never uttered a word against all the thefts we have made. Thanks, Tribune!

Woodrow Wilson's health is said to be improving. That is fortunate, for he will be able to stand the shock better.

Tilden's picture will adorn the new $20,000 bills, which may or may not be of interest to you. If you have any desire whatever to know how Tilden looked, just glance at one of your $20,000 greenbacks. Do your Christmas shopping early.

The Kokomo Tribune says the wish is the father of the bot. Now wouldn't a bet be a forlorn little thing without a father?

Answers to Anxious.

Clarabelle—I have been reading in the papers a bit of late about political polls and have decided they are a new variety. What are they?

Answer—They are first cousins to fishing poles. They perform the same function by catching all suckers afloat.

TOOK A QUANTITY OF PARIS GREEN

Patrick Wallace, In Fit of Despondency, Ended His Life at Union City.

TOO GENEROUS FOR OWN GOOD

Patrick Wallace, one of the best known residents of Union City, took a quantity of paris green mixed with water Thursday night and died Friday.

The Union City Times says:

"Patsy Wallace, a well known citizen, who, during a period of despondency Thursday took a large quantity of paris green, died about noon Friday. He has been a citizen here for more than 40 years, having been a contractor and a farmer, owning at his death much valuable real estate in this city and Darke county. He was kind and generous, in fact, too much so for his own good, and he was easily discouraged. He leaves a wife and eight children; Mrs. Patrick Kennedy, J. B. and John Wallace, of Newcastle; Mrs. Charles Caron of Rushville; Mrs. James Geraghty of Oregon; Edward Wallace, of Bicknell, Ind.; William and Catherine of this city."

SEN. KERN RAILS AT BOTH PARTIES

ple." This assertion was made after Senator Kern had laid stress on the fact that Mr. Bryan wrote the platform at Baltimore as well as picked the nominee.

Senator Kern called the tariff unequal taxation. He said the wealth earned by the great masses of the people has slipped away until now a half earned by everybody in 125 years is in the possession of less than 30,000 men. He said he sympathized with the Socialist, with the Populists and the bolters of the Republican party who are in earnest.

The speaker reverted back to the time before the war when he asserted there was none of that which he chose to call class legislation. He declared the tariff originated as a plan to rid the country of the war tax burden that it was promised the tariff would be removed from the things the people used first but that it has never been done. Instead, he averred, it was removed from the banks first and then from other special interests. He asserted that the Republican platform Gov. Morton wrote in 1870 declared for tariff for revenue only but that he was beaten down and the tariff was increased and had been ever since with each succeeding measure.

Kern quoted Senator LaFollette, and referred to him as "the greatest reformer in the senate and the progressive who is a progressive." He recalled that LaFollette had said there were 200 trusts when Roosevelt became president and over 30,000 existed when he went out. The capitalization of them when Roosevelt went into office was six or seven million and when he went out over thirty billions of dollars, much of it water.

The senator said he didn't blame trusts for voting for the continuance of a high tariff nor did he blame them for pouring money into the campaign fund to continue the tariff. He added that people had been reading the sickening accounts of the campaign contributions. He spoke of Taft refusing to let any tariff legislation go through before the schedules have been investigated by the tariff board.

He assailed Roosevelt for his attitude toward the trusts, quoting the third termer as saying that the trusts had become strong and could not be controlled. He recalled that Roosevelt said they would have to be regulated which is an admission, Kern said, that they are stronger than the government. He said two men were sent to Roosevelt while he was president to call his attention to the fact that a run had been started on a bank and that the country could be overrun with a panic if the Steel trust was not allowed to take over its only dangerous rival.

"This modern hero surrendered to the interests," continued the speaker, "told the steel trust to go ahead, sent a note to his attorney general, the panic was stopped and this coterie of men went on robbing the people."

"I see Senator Beveridge said up at Richmond the other day that if he had been president of the United States in this instance, he would have done the same thing only ten times quicker. God forbid that such a man as he shall ever be governor of Indiana."

Senator Kern classed the fine of $29,000,000 assessed against the Standard Oil Company by the Roosevelt administration as a joke, and said that if it had been paid, John D. Rockefeller would have increased the price of oil three cents and "laughed at you suckers for having to dig a little harder to pay his fine."

The assertion of Kern that Roosevelt prosecuted the Beef trust seven years without a judgment brought a laugh. He declared all trust organizers are criminals under the provisions of the Sherman anti-trust law and should be prosecuted as such.

The Sable Lorcha

BY
Horace Hazeltine

(Copyright, 1912, A. C. McClurg & Co.)

It seems he broke his way out just as the lorcha was sinking. McNish had waited until he had gone to his bunk for his usual nap, and had chosen the hour he was sleeping to get away and scuttle the vessel. For five days Soy floated about on a bit of wreckage without food or drink, and was finally picked up by a prosa and taken back to Macao at the mouth of the Canton river, where, after weeks of delirium, he told his story of the lorcha's fate. From that day the search for McNish began. It seems that he had a partner, an Irishman, named Moran, who for a time was suspected of having been in the conspiracy; for, you must remember, it was thought then that the sinking of the lorcha had been planned from the first, the idea being that it was simply a scheme to get the passage money from the poor coolies, and then drown them.

"Horrible!" ejaculated the physician.

"But the Chinese are just," the missionary continued. "They discovered that a certain United States cruiser that had been warned of the attempted smuggling, did, on that particular day, give chase to a lorcha, which eventually disappeared in the fog. So the enmity against Moran subsided, and, ultimately, this same Moran became the most openly bitter of all the avenging horde that for over a decade and a half scoured the four corners of the globe; for it seems that McNish had not only made off with his share of the receipts of their joint enterprise, but had left him with a ruined lot of debts to settle as well. There was something, too, I believe, about a Chinese woman whose loyalty to Moran, McNish undermined, but I confess that part of the story was not very clear to me. At all events Soy, the half-breed, and Moran, the Irishman, who appears to have been a roving blade, a sort of soldier of fortune with some talent for painting, became the prime movers in this relentless quest, in which they were backed by what is known as the Six Companies. All the tongs, no matter how much at variance on other points, were a unit in this instance, and unlimited money was always available to prosecute the search."

A footman, appearing at this juncture with the inevitable tea paraphernalia, interrupted temporarily the current of Miss Clement's narrative. But our interest was such that we limited the cessation to the briefest possible period. Dr. Addison, whose professional engagements were being topped over one after another, politely urged her to continue, directly her cup was in her hand.

"Think, Miss Clement," he said, with an ingratiating smile, "of the rapt audience you have! I trust it is at once an inspiration and a compensation."

"It surely is," was the good lady's prompt acknowledgment. "And, by the way, I must not forget to tell you how this man, McNish, actually had the temerity to return to China a few years ago. He appeared to think either that his crime had been forgotten or that knowledge of it was limited to the Southern provinces, for in the early fall of 1903, under one of his many aliases, he arrived at Peking, by way of the Trans-Siberian Railway.

The doctor and I exchanged glances. It was odd how confirmation of the error he had already avowed should thus come about from the lips of one who knew nothing of his story of a shattered friendship.

"Oddly enough, Moran happened to be in the city at the time and every arrangement was made to capture the long-sought prey and convey him to Canton for some exquisite torture devised especially to fit his crime. In some way, however, the intended victim got wind of what was proposed, and came within an ace of escaping unscathed from under their very fingers. Indeed, he did escape in the end, but not before Moran had very nearly put a finish to him by a knife thrust in his back."

Once more I exchanged glances with the physician, for scarcely half an hour before, I had told him of the scar on McNish's left shoulder blade, received as I had been told, in Buffalo.

Moran fled from Peking after this encounter, not knowing whether his enemy were dead or alive, and for awhile, I believe, laid very low, as they say. In spite of all the efforts of the combined Chinese organizations, McNish, warned now of his constant danger, eluded their search, but at length Soy himself succeeded in tracing him to Canada and thence to Buffalo. There Moran came, post-haste, and once more there was a street encounter. Moran was arrested, and McNish charged him with assault with intent to kill. The result was that Moran was convicted and sent to prison for a term of years; and once again the earth seemed to close over McNish."

The discrepancies between Miss Clement's narrative and that of Yip Sing I did not regard as sufficiently vital to raise a question over, yet I must admit that I could hardly foresee a conclusion without a much graver antagonism of facts as I knew them.

The missionary having paused to sip her tea, Dr. Addison asked permission to smoke a cigarette, which she readily granted.

"On Moran's release from prison," Miss Clement continued, fortified by the fragrant Oolong, "he appears for the first time to have considered the advisability of adopting some sort of an incognito. Prior to this time he had, Soy told me, been carefully clean shaven and close-cropped. Now he grew a beard and wore his hair long, and, in addition, he doctored it with henna until it became a fiery red. He also changed his name from Moran to Murphy, and instead of frequenting the busy marts of men, he retired to an isolated country place on the Cos Cob river and posed as an artist. He employed always a Chinese servant, and at least once a week, without fail he visited Chinatown, keeping always in touch with the powers there, which were still unrelenting in their efforts to trace McNish."

She came now to Murphy's so-called chance meeting with Cameron on the Fourth of July, of which Cameron himself had already told me. I would have saved her this recital, but it was new to Dr. Addison and so I allowed her to proceed.

"It was plainly evident to Moran," she pursued, "that McNish—or at least the gentleman he supposed was McNish—did not recognize him, and his delight at this discovery was unbounded; for it gave him opportunity, quite unsuspectedly, to arrange all his plans for a most ingenious campaign of torture. What that campaign consisted of, of course, you already know, Mr. Clyde, and I presume Dr. Addison does, too."

"Yes," I replied, "I have told the doctor."

"What you don't know, though," she added, "is how it was managed."

"We have been told something about amyloid pearls," I suggested.

"Amyloid pearls?" queried Dr. Addison, curiously.

With as much clearness as possible

I explained to him what I meant by using this admittedly inaccurate term.

"Incredible!" he exclaimed. "Can it be possible that there is such an anesthetic as this, and we have never even heard of it before?"

"There can be no doubt about its existence," I answered. "I myself have experienced its effects, though I have never actually seen it put in operation."

But it was Miss Clement who was most convincing.

"I have never seen either it or its effects, Doctor," she said, "but I am willing to believe even more marvelous things than that where the Chinese are concerned. You must remember that as a race they are most jealous of their knowledge as well as their possessions. Just now, after all their many centuries of a civilization greater in some respects than our own, we are beginning to learn something of them and their ways, and I should not be at all surprised to discover that in chemistry, in medicine even, they have forgotten more than we know. Soy assured me that not only for days, but for weeks, he himself came and went about Mr. Cameron's—or, as he called it, McNish's—country place without being either seen or heard, simply by using this ether of invisibility. It was he who delivered the three letters. It was he who cut the head from the portrait, and it was he who broke the mirror; and yet no one saw him on the grounds or in the house, and indeed there were very few who saw him in the vicinity. Again and again, he assured me, he could have taken his victim's life but that he was intent on inflicting a punishment more protractedly horrible than mere sudden death."

"Who wrote the letters?" I asked.

"Moran."

"I thought so. And Moran killed the Chinaman who worked for him."

"No; there you are wrong, Mr. Clyde."

"Then who did?"

"Soy himself. He learned of how that boy, unable to control his hatred of the man who had slain some one or more of his kinspeople, carried back the head that had been cut from the portrait, borrowed a rifle from Mr. Cameron's own gamekeeper, and shot the canvas full of holes. It seemed to Soy, then, that in spite of all his and Moran's careful preparation this would surely involve trouble, and that once more their quarry would slip through their fingers. And to prevent the possibility of any more unrestrained fervor on the boy's part, Soy beat him to death."

"I know Soy, or Peter Johnson as he called himself, managed the kidnapping from the yacht," I said, "but I shall never understand how it was done. Did he speak of that?"

"Over and over again. It was he who learned of the intention to take the cruise. At first they thought they would have to change their plans and carry their enemy off before he had a chance to take to his yacht. But Soy maintained that that would be too crude a method; whereas to let him think that he had escaped and was safe away, and then, at the very moment of his triumph, to snatch him from seeming security, would be the very refinement of cruelty the avenger so much desired. And so the properties were secured at some fabulous figure—I forgot just what they paid for that fast power boat—the scene was set, and the great act of the drama, with Soy still the star, was carried to a successful climax."

"But," I made question, "I don't see how Soy could take such a risk. If it had been McNish instead of Cameron, he certainly would have recognized him, when he was brought aboard from the disabled dory."

"He thought of that, but you must remember that in all those sixteen years McNish had never once seen Soy. He thought he had perished with the rest when the Sable Lorcha went down. And so Soy decided that in oilskins, apparently unconscious, in an open boat off the New England coast, there was not one chance in ten thousand that McNish would connect him with the cook he had left for dead in the South China sea."

"But McNish did recognize him as soon as he laid eyes on him in this house. I saw that myself, you know, Miss Clement. He recognized him and was terror stricken."

Miss Clement smiled tolerantly. She was armed at all points.

"You did not know, I suppose, Mr. Clyde, that that was not their first meeting," she explained. "Soy met McNish on the night you found him. It was he who assaulted him, somewhere about Seventh avenue and Fifth street, and would have killed him had not the police arrived at the moment. The officers probably thought McNish was intoxicated and let him go, seeing that he could stand, and so he staggered on to Fifth avenue; and there you discovered him."

"No, I did not know that," I admitted, a little crestfallen. "What followed?"

"You remember I told you that Chinatown was in a state of frenzy, the next day? You can understand now, why. Soy, of course, reported that McNish had escaped from the steamer—"

"What steamer?" I cried, suddenly realizing that the one really vital piece of information we should have obtained, had all this while been delayed. "What steamer? Did he give you the name of it?"

"Yes," I replied, "I have told the doctor."

"What you don't know, though," she added, "is how it was managed."

"We have been told something about amyloid pearls," I suggested.

ANARCHIST SEEKS LIFE OF COLONEL

Roosevelt Shot By Madman.

WOUND NOT SERIOUS

Bullet Checked By Manuscript In Breast Pocket.

HE WENT ON WITH HIS SPEECH

Sensational Incident of Colonel's Visit to Milwaukee.

Milwaukee Wis. Oct. 15.—As he was leaving his hotel for the Auditorium, where he was to deliver his speech of the evening, Theodore Roosevelt was shot and slightly wounded here last night. His assailant, who later gave evidence of dementia, gave his name as John Schrank, and his address as 270 East Tenth street, New York. Before Schrank could fire a second time, Albert Martin, stenographer with the Roosevelt party, and Henry F. Cochems, former football player at Wisconsin university, grabbed Schrank.

Colonel Roosevelt stood beside the automobile which he had been about to enter when shot and directed the policemen who were relieving Martin and Cochems from their struggles with Schrank. Mr. Roosevelt insisted on proceeding to the hall and going through with at least a part of his speech. An examination of the wound by four surgeons showed that the bullet had entered the fleshy part of the right chest. The wound bled freely for some time, but Colonel Roosevelt said he was suffering no pain, and so far as the doctors could determine, there was no internal hemorrhage.

Had to Cut Speech Short.

The colonel was at first supposed to have escaped uninjured for a moment after Schrank had wedged through the crowd and fired at him. Mr. Roosevelt smiled as if to reassure the people in turmoil that surged about him. He suddenly, however, put his hand under his coat and was seen to wince for an instant. Then he moved toward the auto and stepped into it, said a word to his associates, and the next moment the throng was making way for his machine and the auto was whirling toward the Auditorium.

The crowd that struggled about the assailant in front of Colonel Roosevelt's hotel after he had left for the hall took his sudden departure to mean that he had been uninjured, and the crowd cheered. But when he had reached the Auditorium and made his way amid great cheering to the front of the platform, those close to him could see a streak of red on his white waistcoat.

"An attempt has just been made to kill me," said the colonel to an audience that had stifled its first cheers and now listened in absolute silence. "I am carrying the bullet in my body now, and so I shall have to cut my speech short."

Through the great throng that had been crowding about the colonel's automobile in front of the hotel and cheering him as he was walking toward it, the police, after Colonel Roosevelt had departed, dragged Schrank into the hotel. While Martin, the stenographer, and Cochems had been struggling with him and later while the police were pulling him away from the crowd and into the lobby, Schrank raved incoherently.

Colonel Leaves for Chicago.

Colonel Roosevelt, in the meantime, after making the announcement in the hall that he had been shot and repeating it to members of his own party that surrounded him, spoke for nearly an hour and then was hurried away to the hospital, where at 12:30 o'clock this morning the following bullet was issued: "Colonel Roosevelt is suffering from a superficial flesh wound below the right breast, with no injury to the lung. The bullet probably lodged somewhere in the chest wall, because there is but one wound and no sign of injury to the lung. As the bullet passed through Colonel Roosevelt's army overcoat, other clothes, doubled manuscript and metal spectacle case, its force was much spent. The appearance of the wound also presented evidence of a much spent bullet. The colonel is not suffering from shock and is in no pain. His condition is so good that the surgeons do not object to his continuing his journey to Chicago in his private car, where he will be placed under surgical care." The bulletin was signed by Dr. S. L. Terrell, a throat specialist, who is travelling with the colonel; Dr. Fayle, Dr. Joseph Colt Bloodgood, and Dr. S. A. Stratton. About 1 o'clock Colonel Roosevelt was conveyed to his special train and departed for Chicago.

COLONEL ROOSEVELT

Former President Wounded by Crazy Anarchist's Shot.

SWARM OF RUNS IN FIRST INNING

Gave Giants a Game They Very Much Needed.

MARQUARD AGAIN MAKES GOOD

The Good Twirling of the Tall Left Hander for the Second Time in the Series Kept the Red Sox Out of a Game in Determinedly Fought Contest—"Buck" O'Brien Was Easy for the New Yorkers in Decisive First.

At New York— R.H.E. Boston.... 0 2 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 7 1 New York... 5 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 5 11 0 O'Brien, Collins and Cady; Marquard and Meyers.

New York, Oct. 15.—The doughty men of Boston were laid low by the Knickerbocker band of fighters when the Giants and Red Sox played their fifth game for championship honors here. The score, 5 to 2, was the most one-sided, or rather the nearest to one-sided, of any of the six games. Boston now has three games to its credit and New York two, four being necessary to determine the championship.

The total paid attendance was 30,622; total receipts, $66,654; national commission's share, $6,665.40; each club's share, $29,994.30.

The Giants swarmed into the home hive in the first inning with all the runs they made in the game. Buck O'Brien, the wet ball expert, was pitching a poor game, of which fact Manager McGraw took instant cognizance, and of which his men, directed by him, took prompt and full advantage. O'Brien's reign was brief. One inning was its length.

It was Rube Marquard who pitched the Giants to victory. For the second time in the series the Red Sox were compelled to succumb to the good twirling of the tall left-hander.

The Bostons could not solve Marquard's pitching more than to reap an insufficient crop of two runs, which, like the Giants' flare-up, was confined to one inning. And if Marquard had not fumbled a ball they wouldn't have had those two. Clyde Engle, the muscular albino, doing duty as a pinch hitter, brushed in those two runs with about the hardest hit the Red Sox made.

Pressed in Too Late.

Another recruit from the bench, Collins, whom the Giants knocked out of the box last week, did well. The Giants hit Collins but scatteringly. From a punching bag one week ago he became a capable performer the next. But he was pressed into service too late. The choice of pitchers which preferred O'Brien to him went wrong.

The splendid support which Marquard had in the early part of the game was of great assistance and was encouragement for him in his part of the work. Support tired him over trouble in the early innings, but once clear of the early jams, he shared equally with the supporting company in keeping the Red Sox in their places. Only one hit was made off him after the fourth inning. Only five New Yorkers reached first base in their last seven innings.

Compared to what the outfielders were called on to do, the infielders had a restful afternoon. The Boston team especially had a fondness for outfield fly hitting. Devore, Snodgrass and Murray shared fifteen catches among them. Murray and Snodgrass roamed the meadows as thoroughly as a bird dog combs the field for quail. They covered ground and they fastened to such balls as were volleyed their way with a vice-like grip.

A catch by Snodgrass in the third inning was the best of the day and the best of the series. It was a mighty smash from Speaker's bat and was drilling its way to the centerfield stand. There was man on base at the time and nobody out. Had it gone clear it would have boomed Boston's stock greatly, for the least Speaker would have had would have been a three-bagger. Snodgrass can run and he sure scratches gravel this time. He was going at top speed when he caught the ball, and for a moment the heartbeats of those in the stands were audible. It was not until Snodgrass stopped and turned around with the ball that it was seen that he had held it. Speaker and Hooper played their respective fields like the luminaries they are.

There were four hits of the infield species in the first inning, an inning which booted and bubbled and buzzed.

EXPRESSED REGRET

Opposing Candidates Offer Sympathy to Colonel Roosevelt.

New York, Oct. 15.—President Taft was sitting at the right hand of Mayor Gaynor last night at a dinner which the city gave in honor of the Atlantic fleet, when the report of the attempt upon the life of Colonel Roosevelt reached him. Upon a request from the newspapers for a comment upon the attack on the colonel, Mr. Taft took out his pencil and wrote these lines: "I am very sorry to hear of the assault upon Colonel Roosevelt, and am glad to learn that no harm has come to him.—W. H. T."

Wilson Greatly Distressed.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 15.—When Governor Wilson was told of the reported shooting of Colonel Roosevelt he asked for more details, and seemed relieved when he learned that the colonel had not been seriously injured. "I am greatly distressed to learn of the shooting of Colonel Roosevelt," he said, "but I rejoice that the wound is not serious."

COLD-BLOODED TALE NARRATED IN COURT

Bridgie Webber's Testimony Corroborates Rose.

New York, Oct. 15.—On the witness stand the moneyed man of the Rosenthal murderers, Bridgie Webber, told a story of Lieutenant Becker's savage insistence on murder, and of his own share in the crime that matched the cold-blooded narrative that Jack Rose supplied last Saturday.

Rose now and then displayed a trace of human feeling. Webber's story was as cold and emotionless as if it came from a frozen heart. Money, murder, the turn of a roulette wheel, friendship, revenge—no one thing moved him more than another. His voice and manner were precisely the same when he told about sending the gunmen to the Metropole to kill Rosenthal as when he admitted that he had immediately sent $50 to the widow.

His testimony was effective for the prosecution in that it not only corroborated every shred of Rose's testimony, but also supplied details which were more shocking in their regard to Lieutenant Becker than anything Rose had said. He took upon himself responsibility for the inside management of the murder—that and the financial details. He swore that Becker borrowed $100 from him with which to pay the gunmen and that he gave the money to Rose, who handed it to Lefty Louie and Dago Frank. Insisting that he had no quarrel with Rosenthal, he admitted that he was willing for the gambler to be murdered when Becker demanded it. And all through his testimony was a chill unconcern—voluntary admission that he never paused when asked to arrange a murder. He merely told Becker that it was a serious matter. He came to court with a memory for conversations, for the details of foul epithets that was as remarkable as Rose's. His story of Becker's comment to Rose and him after the murder agreed almost word for word with Rose's testimony as to Becker's exulting description of the dead man and Becker's language.

ON TRIAL FOR FIFTH TIME.

Columbus, Ind., Oct. 15.—The trial of the case of Fred Wolf, administrator of the estate of the late Burney Wolf, in which $10,000 damages are demanded from the Big Four road for the death of Burney Wolf, is in progress for the fifth time in the Bartholomew circuit court here. At four previous trials the juries disagreed.

Shelbyville Residents, on Way Here For Visit, Suffer Mishap Near Morristown.

MACHINE RUNS INTO A POLE

Steering Gear Breaks And all Occupants of Car Are Severely Shaken up—Finally Get Here.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Gillespie and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Roth and daughter, of Shelbyville had a frightful experience Sunday at 12 o'clock when the Gillespie touring car in which they had started to Rushville for a visit with friends, dashed into a telephone pole after plunging down a six-foot embankment about three miles east of Morristown, says the Shelbyville Democrat. The trouble started when the steering gear on the car broke.

The machine was howling along at a good speed and it struck the telephone pole with such force that it was snapped off even with the ground. The crash threw everybody from their seats with the exception of Mr. Gillespie, who was at the wheel and Mr. Roth was hurled fifteen feet.

All six occupants of the car suffered injuries, but none of them was seriously hurt. The worst injuries were suffered by Mrs. Gillespie and Mr. Roth, the former's knee cap being hurt and the latter's hands being cut and bruised. One of his hands was badly swollen today.

The party remained at the scene of the accident till four o'clock in the evening. The car had been put in running condition by that time, a mechanician being called from Morristown, and the party then proceeded to Rushville, where they spent the night. They returned to Shelbyville this morning. The accident caused them to miss a fine chicken dinner, but they more than made up for the lost time at the friend's supper table.

SPECIAL TRAIN FOR RICHMOND

Fans Will Have Chance of Seeing Locals in the Final Game of the Season.

WILL PLAY K. I. O. LEAGUE TEAM

Haltermann Will be on Mound For Rushville and Rest of Team Will Remain the Same.

Since it became known that Rushville would play at Richmond Sunday, local fans have been clamoring for a way to get to the game and so great was the interest shown that Manager Maibaugh has decided to run a special train for the accomodation of the fans and those that wish to spend a day in Richmond.

There are no trains going from here to Richmond on Sunday and it is necessary to have a special.

The train will be run over the Pennsylvania railroad and will leave here at 9 o'clock, this giving everyone a big visit in the Wayne county capitol. At first it was intended to take only the team but demands for a way to get there became so great that a special was ordered. While the crowd will not be near as large as went to Newcastle, quite a bunch of fans have stated they would go. The fare will be $1.50 for the round trip.

The game between Rushville and the Richmond K. I. O. league team will be the final game of the season for the locals. Considerable interest is being shown in the game. Richmond has a fast team and finished second in the K. I. O. league giving the Hamilton Krebs an awful race for first place. Rushville has a chance of beating the leaguers and will make an effort to do so. Manager Maibaugh will use the same line up as last Sunday when the Merits of Indianapolis were handed the short end of a 11 to 1 score. Haltermann, the southpaw will pitch the game for Rushville and local fans pin their faith to him to bring home the bacon. It is known what Haltermann can do and it is believed he can trim the Richmond bunch.

FIFTH TRIAL ON.

Columbus Republican: The fifth trial of Fred Wolf, administrator of the late Burney Wolf, against the Big Four, for damages, was begun in Circuit Court here this morning. Judge W. Donaker is sitting as special judge in the case. At each of the four previous trials the jury has failed to agree. The case originated in Decatur county, was tried twice in Rush county and has been tried twice here.

Milroy Press: Walter Land, who formerly lived on the Frank McCorkle farm but is now living near Rushville is reported dangerously ill with the typhoid fever and he is being moved to a hospital in Indianapolis.

Simeon Linville of St. Paul a conductor on the I. & C. traction line, cut a large gash in the palm of his right hand Saturday while unloading trunks from his car. It required seven stitches to close the wound.

Car, No. 313, on the Indianapolis & Cincinnati traction was side-swiped as it was passing on to a switch near Waldron by another car traveling in the opposite direction.

The east bound car was taking the switch when the side of the rear vestibule was run into before it cleared the main track. A portion of the rear platform was torn away, and the glass knocked out and one of the handles pulled off.

CAMPAIGN OPENS FIRE IS WORK OF AN INCENDIARY

Noblesville Man Suspected of Setting James Frazee's Fertilizer Factory on Fire.

LOSS OF $4,000 IS CAUSED

Misfortune Visits Former Rushville Man Twice in Last Few Weeks —Will Rebuild.

James Frazee of Noblesville, very well known here where he formerly resided, suffered a loss of between thirty-five hundred and four thousand dollars Sunday night from a fire of incendiary origin, according to word received by his relatives here.

Mr. Frazee operates a fertilizer factory at Noblesville. Sunday night a fire was discovered in the building about eleven o'clock. The efforts of the fire department were futile and the building and all of its contents were burned to the ground.

Relatives here understand that it is practically known who committed the dastardly deed. They say that Mr. Frazee's friends and the authorities at Noblesville will do all in their power to sift the whole matter to the bottom.

It is said that the evidence against the suspected person is enough to incriminate him. Whether or not he is an enemy of Mr. Frazee's is not known here, nor is it understood that his reason was for wrecking vengeance on Mr. Frazee.

There were sixty-two valuable hides in the building all of them were either burned up or destroyed by the fire so that they are valueless. Mr. Frazee proposes to rebuild the factory at once. The worst feature of the blaze is that Mr. Frazee did not have a cent of insurance on the factory, and the loss will be a total one.

Mr. Frazee has had more than his share of misfortune in the last few weeks. The latter part of last month he was badly scalded when a boiler at the factory exploded. He is just now recovering from injuries received then.

Mr. Frazee was formerly a city policeman here and has a large list of friends and acquaintances who will be sorry to hear of his unfortunate loss. He was employed as bus driver before acting in the capacity of a policeman here. He has been in the fertilizer business in Noblesville about four years, engaging in it shortly after his return from the south.

CAMPAIGN OPENS ON NEXT MONDAY

Republicans Will Fire Gun in Rushville With A. C. Rankin of Chicago Chief Speaker.

DOUBLED BARRELLED ORATOR

Campaign Will Close Saturday Before Election With Meeting at Tabernacle—Mays Tonight.

The Republican campaign will be formally opened in the city of Rushville at the Coliseum next Monday night when Col. Alexandria C. Rankin of Chicago, "a spellbinder that is a spellbinder," who has been campaigning for the Republican party since the days of James G. Blain, will discuss the issues of the campaign.

Coming on the heels of the announcement of the opening of the campaign here is the announcement also that the campaign in Rush county will be closed by the Republicans with a grand finale. The immense tabernacle which will seat between twenty-five hundred and three thousand people, and which will be in disuse by the end of the campaign, will be used for the speakings.

All parties in this campaign have been dickering for the rental of the tabernacle for speeches, but the men who control the renting of it have steadfastly held out against it, just by arguing that it would be as much of a desecration to hold a political meeting in the tabernacle as it would be to hold one in a church since the tabernacle is now the place of religious worship in the city.

Republicans are elated at the coupe which resulted in the renting of the tabernacle for the closing meeting of the campaign. Many have thought that all parties have been rather late in starting this campaign, but the Republicans are bound to close in swirl of glory. The tabernacle not only has a much larger seating capacity than the coliseum, but it is also much more convenient and will attract more people who are only causal attendants at political meetings.

The county chairman, Clata L. Bebout, was happy this morning when he announced that such a man as Col. Rankin had been persuaded to come to Rushville. He is a noted and eloquent speaker who has been in great demand not only in this campaign but in all previous ones since he was able to make a speech.

Indiana first became acquainted with Col. Rankin in this campaign when he visited Indianapolis and a number of smaller cities with the Republican tariff special the first week in October. It was the tariff special, with three national orators abroad, that trailed Woodrow Wilson when he made an extensive campaign through the central States recently. They traveled a day or two behind the Democratic nominee.

John P. Ryan and Angus Earley of New York, representing the Republican national committee, were in charge. The train carried Senator Theodore Burton, of Ohio; Isaac N. Meekins, of Elizabeth City, N. C.; Alexander C. Rankin, of Chicago and Charles A. Carlisle, of South Bend, the Republican candidate for congress in the Thirteenth Indiana district.

The Republican campaign in this county will be opened at Mays with a speech by Frank E. Beach of Newcastle. This will be followed by a Republican address by A. J. Ross at New Salem tomorrow night.

Probably the most prominent Republican orator which will appear in the county this week is Richard N. Langford of Platte, Nebraska, who will speak at Milroy Thursday night.

RETURNED TO CLERMONT

Mrs. Campbell May Not See Husband 'Til She's 21.

Rosalee Bunnell Campbell, 18 years old, a bride of a few days, has been returned to the Indianapolis Girls' School, of which she was a ward, and probably will not be permitted to see her husband again until she becomes 21 years old, says the Indianapolis Star. She violated her parole last Friday and ran away from Milroy, Ind., to be married to Howard Campbell, a cripple. They were found at Cincinnati.

MAYOR HANDS OUT HEAVY SENTENCE

Gives Levi Pea $100 Fine And 100 Days in Jail For Running "Blind Tiger."

IS RESULT OF RAID SATURDAY

Levi Pea, who was caught in the raid on a tent near the Big Four bridge Saturday afternoon pleaded guilty to operating a "blind tiger" before Mayor Black late yesterday afternoon and was fined $100 and sentenced to 100 days in jail. The sentence and fine were suspended, however, pending Pea's good behavior. Pea admitted that the "blind tiger" was owned by Harry Pea who "rented it" from the city Saturday night. Levi Pea was in the employ of Harry Pea and besides acting as watchman, managed the place in the absence of the boss. The grand jury will probably take up the case against Harry Pea and he will be arrested if he ever returns here. The police have nothing with which to hold the other men caught at the "blind tiger."

NO DANGER FROM HEAVY FROST NOW

Farmers Say That Corn Crop is Safe as it is Ripening Very Fast.

RECORD YIELD IS EXPECTED

Farmers are now relieved because of the fact that they need no longer to fear the effect of an early frost on their corn. There is no danger from this source now. The corn is ripening rapidly and instead of damaging the corn, frost is an advantage as it helps to take the sap out of it and hurry the process of curing or ripening it.

With a few more light frosts the farmers can begin to gather their crop as early as in former years, notwithstanding the fact that the crop has been a few weeks behind the season until the late heavy rains and hot weather which followed, which brought this crop to the front so rapidly. The crop will be a big one in every part of the country.

Just at the time when there began to be some fear that the great humidity would keep the corn green too long, thus inviting the formation of huge, spongy ears, the cooler weather arrived. The result has been to start the whole crop to ripening and seasoning in the natural manner. There will be many little ears, as a consequence of the late spring, but there will be a greater number of big ears and all indications point to a quality in general which will be as notable as the crop's development.

BIG PARADE TO USHER IN SHOW

Industrial Pageant Tomorrow Morning Will Mark Start of Two Day's Event.

LARGE AMOUNT OF STOCK HERE

Pony Show Feature of Wednesday Nights' Program—Light Harness Classes Thursday.

The horse show opens tomorrow and everything is in readiness for the start of the two day's event. The weather conditions promise to be ideal and the promoters are highly elated over the prospects. Practically all the stock entered is on hands and the entries exceed those of any other year in number.

The annual event will be ushered in tomorrow morning with a big industrial parade in which will be seen all the horses entered. The parade will be one of the best features of the show. The parade is scheduled to start at 9 o'clock. At the conclusion of the parade the show will start in earnest when the first showing of horses will be made.

First street, which will be used for showing purposes has been put in first class shape and is ready for the showing as well as the speed events. Wednesday night the principal attraction will be the pony show. Rush county, long known for its fine horses will be run up against some stiff competition this year as many classy animals have been entered from a distance. Among these is a string owned by Mart Wilson of Morning Star, Ohio. Mr. Wilson has a fine lot of horses and hopes to run off the money. Several other entries have been received from Oxford.

Thursday, the final day of the show will be devoted to the light harness events. The show will end Thursday night with the big automobile parade. Seventy dollars in prizes are offered for the best decorated machines and the parade promises to surpass the one of last year.

A large amount of stock is also entered for the combination sale which will be held Friday and Saturday.

JOE BROWN BRINGS INJUNCTION SUIT

Second One to be Filed Against Board of Commissioners and Wilk & Company.

WILL BE HEARD TOMORROW

Joe Brown, a resident of Orange township, filed an injunction suit against the Board of Commissioners and Wilk & Co., this afternoon in the circuit court. The case is the outcome of the commissioners awarding the contract for the Norman Apple road in Orange township to Wilk & Co., when William Emsweller was the lowest bidder.

Mr. Emsweller filed a similar suit a few weeks ago but in order to have sufficient grounds the new case was filed by a tax payer in Orange township. Emsweller claims his bid was lower than Wilk & Co. and that the board had no right to award the contract. Judge Blair will come here tomorrow and hear the case. The suit brought by Emsweller will probably be dismissed.

SEN. KERN RAILS AT BOTH PARTIES

Says Bull Moosers and Republicans Adhere to Exploded Theory of Unequal Taxation.

BRYAN GETS THE APPLAUSE

Creates Much More Enthusiasm Than Does Mention of Wilson's Name — Crowd Not Large.

Charging that the Republican party is adhering to that old exploded theory of unequal taxation and that the Bull Moose party is just as bad in its stand on the tariff, Senator John W. Kern of Indianapolis spoke to a crowd of eight hundred or a thousand people at the Coliseum last night. He talked for an hour and a half, after which Arthur H. Jones of Indianapolis addressed the audience briefly.

G. P. Hunt was the presiding officer and introduced Lieutenant Governor Frank J. Hall who introduced both of the speakers.

Senator Kern told of the time when he delivered his first campaign speech in Rush county before he was of age, and contrasted that year with this when the Democrats are all united, he declared. Too often we have gone into the fight divided among ourselves, he added, but this year we present a solid front against a divided opposition.

He said the opposition seemed to enjoy the fight so much that the Democrats ought to let them alone.

"This fight between Taft and Roosevelt," the senator continued, is such a beautiful situation, on for which I have been longing for years. One of these imaginary generals is standing at Armageddon, wherever that is. He imagines he is fighting for the Lord as though the Lord had not been doing it well enough up to this time.

"This general has appropriated the religious fervor and is singing 'Forward Christian Soldiers' when in reality all he and his leaders know is 'We Won't Go Home Till Morning.'

Senator Kern said President Taft didn't seem to be in the race, but he added that he wouldn't speak disrespectfully of him because "he is the president of my country, my president and your president as well as the president of the Republican party." The speaker was roundly applauded for this sentiment.

The junior senator from Indiana asserted that the voice of the people never spoke more truly than it did at Baltimore and Indianapolis when Wilson was nominated for president and Ralston for governor. He spoke of Ralston as a Christian gentleman of noble ideals and added: "It is bad enough for one man to slander another, but a man who aspires for office himself to utter slander against one who seeks the same place is ill becoming."

Senator Kern laid particular emphasis on the fact that Ralston was named unanimously. He expressed the opinion that it had to be that way because the sentiment was perniciously in favor of Ralston, he declared, that it would have swept any other candidate away.

Senator Kern's mention of William Jennings Bryan and his part in the Baltimore convention aroused more enthusiasm than any other thing in his speech. It was noticeable that the mention of Woodrow Wilson's name seldom ever caused even a ripple of applause. The speaker mentioned the name of the presidential candidate only a few times, and then very briefly.

Kern asserted that "Bryan may never be president, but he still holds a high place in the hearts of the people." Continued on page 2.

MAKE AUSPICIOUS START

Meetings at New Salem Attract Large Crowds at First.

The revival meeting at New Salem, which is being conducted by the Rev. F. B. Stearns, is starting with much promise, according to reports from there. The church was crowded Sunday night and last night the crowd was three-fourths as large. R. N. Rowe, the singing evangelist, has a chorus of thirty voices and will be increased ten to twenty this week. Services will be held every night this week and three meetings will be held Sunday. In the afternoon the Rev. Mr. Stearns will talk to men only on "Booze" and at the same hour a women's meeting will be held at the M. E. church, probably to be addressed by the Rev. W. H. Wylie of this city.

CITY CLOSES UP SHOP TODAY

Practically All Business Houses Locked This Afternoon For Day of Fasting and Prayer.

AMUSEMENT SERMON TONIGHT

Dr. Biederwolf Will Preach on "The Card Table, The Theater and The Dance."

Twelve stars are one of Biederwolf's most exhausting efforts. Physicians have warned him against its repetition. No one interested in the matters to be discussed can afford to stay away. No seats will be reserved for visiting delegations.

Rushville closed up its shops this afternoon for the day of fasting and prayer in connection with the Biederwolf meetings at the tabernacle. Practically every business house and office in the city, with the exception of the saloons and newspaper offices were closed this afternoon from two until four o'clock.

"We all assure the business men," said Dr. Biederwolf that we appreciate their attitude toward this day in closing their places of business as they did. While not many of the business men are here for the meeting, as is always the case in other cities, I will venture today that more people are thinking about God in Rushville now than they have for some time. And again personally I wish to thank the business men for their kindness in granting the request asked of them."

Miss Parshall conducted a brief service at 12:30, speaking on "Bible Arithmetic." Don Cochran sang. The girls enjoyed the social hour together, and all announced their intention of coming back tomorrow, when they will be the guests of the Presbyterian church.

All business girls are cordially invited. Lunch is served from eleven to one o'clock.

NEW YORK GIVES RED SOX DRUBBING

Giants Get to Wood For Six Runs in First And Win 11 to 4.

HALL SUCCEEDS SMOKEY JOE

New York gave Boston an awful drubbing today, winning by the score of 11 to 4. Wood started the game for Boston and was knocked out in the first inning, New York securing six runs. Hall, who succeeded Wood fared little better and the Giants had every thing their own way. The first nine balls Hall threw were called balls and Doyle scored on a wild base to center.

The final and deciding game of the series will be played at Boston tomorrow. The score:

R. H. E.
N. Y.—6 1 0 0 0 2 1 0 1—11 12 4
Bos.—0 1 0 0 0 0 2 1 0—4 9 3

Rev. Sergeant filled Bro. Sterrett's pulpit on Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock. He is interested in the preacher's Aid Society. His sermon was along that line. He is going around soliciting a fund equal to $400.00, whose interest will be sufficient with the individual donations given by the members of the M. E. church or any other church member to give the worn out ministers a dollar a day pension after their productive period of life has passed.

No service at the U. P. church on last Sabbath day. The members attended the Tabernacle services at Rushville.

The people are getting warmed up to their political interests. Some are getting over anxious about questioning others as to how they are going to vote. At times they meet with a response that sends a chill running down their spine, causing them to take quinine to break up the fever.

Master Harold Harlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Harlow, while playing with two hammers and hitting one on the other broke a piece of steel off of one of the poles of the hammer which flew into the boy's eye. The boy was taken to Indianapolis where a specialist removed the piece of steel. Mr. and Mrs. Harlow remained with him until the boy recovered from the operation and brought him home Sunday evening.

Many visitors viewed the new school building. It probably will be ready for occupancy next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Cameron entertained company over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Alexander entertained Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Britt, of Everton, Ind., and Mr. Alexander, a druggist of the Denison block, Indianapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Winchell of Indianapolis spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Lew Matney.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Timberman spent Sunday in the country.

Mr. Garrison is suffering from a severe attack of typhoid fever.

Mrs. Katie Mapes and son Maurice spent one day last week with Mrs. da Coon of South Orange.

Miss Jessie Murphy rendered the very beautiful solo, "My Father Knows," at the close of the E. L. Clevie Sunday evening. Miss Jessie manifests some very splendid cultivation in the art of vocal music.

AMUSEMENTS

Indianapolis will have its annual festival of grand opera in English at the Shubert-Murat Theatre, Indianapolis, opening next Monday, October 14th. The Aborn English Grand Opera Company, whose engagement last season was a complete artistic success, comes again to present a still larger list of offerings, including eight operas in its eight performances, particulars of which will be announced in the Indianapolis daily papers.

This is the only opera company presenting a repertoire of classics in English in America, and will probably be the only organization of its kind to visit Indiana this season. It contains the best selection of American Artists available, a large chorus and an orchestra of soloists who have won approval with the Aborn forces at the Boston Opera House, the Brooklyn Academy of Music and other famous temples of operatic art. Complete and elaborate productions are carried in four large baggage cars for the eight operas of their repertoire.

When this aggregation appeared here last season they captivated the music-loving public at once, playing capacity audiences during their engagement. The press and public alike were surprised at the uniform excellence of their offerings with no advance in the regular theatre scale.

PHALACROSIS WAS TOO MUCH

The Jury Decided That the Defendant Had Something the Matter With His Head.

The case was one of assault and battery, and one of the witnesses was a local doctor whom the prosecuting solicitor proceeded to bully, suggesting that he was prejudiced in favor of the defendant and had wilfully distorted his evidence in his favor. The doctor denied this, and went on to say that the defendant was suffering from "phalacrosis." The word caused a sensation in court, and, asked to define the disease, the doctor described it as "a sort of chronic disease of an inflammatory nature which affects certain cranial tissues."

Asked if it affected the mind, the doctor said he was not posing as an expert, but he had known some persons when suffering from the disease to become ravings maniacs, and others merely foolish; some showed destructive and pugilistic tendencies, while many others had suffered for years and had never shown any mental abnormalities. He refused to say anything further, and the jury promptly acquitted the accused; because, as the foreman explained, "Doctor said there was something the matter with his head."

When the case was over the prosecutor sought enlightenment as to the mysterious disease, and found that "phalacrosis" meant—baldness!

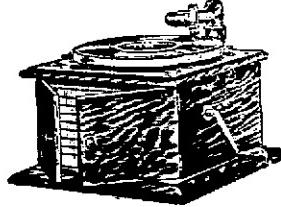

Geo. T. Craddock, Rubie, Ark., says: "I was bothered with lumbago for seven years so I could not work. I tried several kinds of kidney medicine which gave me little or no relief. Two bottles of Foley Kidney Pills cured me and now I can do any kind of work. I cheerfully recommend them to my friends." F. B. Johnson & Co.

WHO FURNISHED WILSON'S FUNDS

Details of Pre-Convention Campaign Brought Out.

OTHER CANDIDATES MENTIONED

Senate Committee Investigating the Source of Campaign Funds Gets at the Facts Relating to the Financing of Respective Booms of Candidates Wilson, Harmon, Underwood and Clark Before Baltimore Convention.

Washington, Oct. 15.—The senate committee, in a brisk fire of questions, laid bare the sources of contributions to the pre-convention campaign contributions of Woodrow Wilson, Judge Harmon and Oscar Underwood. It was a Democratic field day.

The committee began with W. F. McCombs, chairman of the Democratic national committee, who testified that $203,565 was expended to nominate Governor Wilson at Baltimore. This testimony developed the interesting fact that Governor Wilson had a larger campaign fund than any of his rivals for the nomination.

Lieutenant Governor Hugh L. Nichols of Ohio, who followed Mr. McCombs, testified to expenditures in behalf of Governor Harmon's pre-convention campaign, slightly in excess of $150,000. Of this sum $146,000 was spent through the national bureau, of which Lieutenant Governor Nichols was chairman, and approximately $5,000 through a local organization at Columbus.

Senator J. H. Bankhead of Alabama exposed the Underwood contributions and expenditures to the view of the committee. He collected and spent approximately $50,000 in an effort to bring about the nomination of Mr. Underwood for president.

Champ Clark's pre-convention fund had already been given as about $50,000.

Some of the Contributors.

Among the disclosures of the day following stand out most conspicuously: Thomas F. Ryan contributed $77,000 to Governor Harmon's campaign fund and $35,000 to Representative Underwood's; James J. Hill contributed $15,000 to Governor Harmon's campaign; Cyrus H. McCormick of the International Harvester company contributed $12,500 to the pre-convention campaign of Governor Wilson, but it was explained that this contribution was made as a friend of Princeton university and its former president, and not as the representative of the harvester company. Nevertheless the Bull Moose followers seized upon it as a precious morsel and will immediately use it as a political counter-irritant to the charges hurled at Colonel Roosevelt about George W. Perkins's activities.

Cleveland H. Dodge of New York appears as the largest personal contributor to Governor Wilson's campaign fund. His personal contribution was $61,300. Other large contributions to Governor Wilson's fund were: Henry Morganthau, $20,000; William F. McCombs, $11,000; Frederick C. Penfield, $12,000; Abraham I. Elkus, $12,500; Harvey Thomas, $6,500; William G. McAdoo, about $5,000; Jacob H. Schiff, $2,500.

Alton B. Parker, Democratic nominee for president in 1904, and George F. Parker, who was at the head of the Democratic literary bureau that year, furnished the committee a new clue. Judge Parker testified that he was informed by Daniel S. Lamont, late in the campaign of 1904, that there had been a meeting of representatives of big corporate interests, who had agreed to combine their influence and raise the necessary money to elect Colonel Roosevelt. Colonel Lamont named to Judge Parker as the men who had participated in the conference the following: James H. Stillman, at that time president of the National City bank; E. H. Harriman, Robert Bacon, Charles F. Brooker, Daniel G. Reid and Henry C. Frick. He said he was prevented from making the names public at the time because Colonel Lamont objected to being drawn into the affair publicly. This was the first time that Judge Parker ever disclosed the source of his information on which he based his well-known charges against Roosevelt in 1904.

It is probable that the committee will call all of the men named who are still living, and Mr. Harriman is the only one who is dead. Daniel G. Reid is already under pledge to give his testimony. Judge Parker's testimony created something of a sensation.

Beveridge and the Star.

Albert J. Beveridge's hypocrisy is infectious. Witness the case of the Indianapolis Star which has been associated with him these few months, since the birth of the Bull Moose party, after a career of wobbling during which time it was a Republican newspaper in spots.

But the writings of its staff correspondent, who has been traveling over Indiana with Beveridge during this campaign in an automobile, are more of a case in point. Each Monday morning the Star carries a little of his "personal" stuff in which he professes to tell a little of the side of Mr. Beveridge, which the audiences do not see, possibly, on account of the glare of the limelight.

This week the correspondent devotes his column to a cheap attack

Sam Sanderson Says:

That he is not half so much concerned about the world's series as he is about where the next pumpkin is coming from.

has increased 50 per cent in that period. Do we want another dose of 1893 failures?

There were several men in Boston on the days of the world series games who opened up the office and made a bluff of working.

Over in England they think Uncle Sam is going to give John Bull his $400,000,000 canal for a Christmas present.

The final crop report gives the biggest record ever, and all the politicians are claiming the credit for it.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking AboutT. R. AND BOSSSES.

(South Bend Tribune.)

Gov. Marshall in asserting that when Col. Roosevelt was elected governor of New York he was ineligible for that office presented no new evidence in the case. In Senator Platt's autobiography it is distinctly stated that in 1897, when the big moose was assistant secretary of the navy, he had sworn off his taxes in New York on the ground that he was a resident of the District of Columbia and that he was therefore ineligible for governor.

Notwithstanding this, and even though the colonel at first declared he would not remain in the fight,

Roosevelt was nominated at the instance of Platt. The Indiana governor frankly says that there is nothing new in the story, declares that it has been told before, but asserts that this is an excellent time to retail it, asking what confidence the people can place in a man who runs for and accepts office to which "he knows he is ineligible."

The story may be correct and it may not; the governor did not vouch for its accuracy, nor could he.

At the same time it is well to recall the fact that the tale formed a portion of the Platt autobiography and that it has never been refuted. As the colonel is skillful at refutation, it is rather reasonable to conclude that he would long ago have denied the whole thing had there been sufficient chance.

In the first place nobody has ever accused Mr. Beveridge of being dissipated, etc., etc., while he was in college. All the charges of this character that have been brought against

Mr. Beveridge have been in respect to his latter-day life. The correspondent has never attempted to offer a defense of his everyday life since he has been before the public eye. Such an attempt would be futile, and at the same time would emphasize Mr.

Beveridge's shortcomings and call the voters' attention to them.

Of course, men who are acquainted with Mr. Beveridge and his past enemy for morality and sobriety, well know what his reputation is. Furthermore they know that the Indianapolis Star, or any of its correspondents can hoodwink the thinking people into believing that all of the Bull

Moose candidate's ranting about everyone will correct is sincere. It's all bumblebe.

It will be observed that the correspondent refers to the so-called attack on Beveridge as "pretty cheap."

Yet, just above the item about Beveri-idge appears a 763 word article about

Samuel Ralston's visit to Connensville—the occasion when he neglected to tip the barber. That in itself is a highly important matter—doubtless any one will recognize that fact. Mr.

Ralston forgot to tip the barber. A highly important incident that. But the Indianapolis Star, in its narrow, putrid vision, possibly has so far perverted its sensibilities in its rank partisanship during this campaign, that the men who are conducting its editorial policy, actually believe that the publication of this incident will lose votes for Ralston and make them for Beveridge. Evidently they are running a newspaper merely to make votes for Beveridge. But if the above is the case, the editors are to be forgiven, and it is to be regretted that they should descend to such a mental condition.

In 1893, when Democratic policies were in force, there were failures

The Kokomo Tribune points out that the Chicago Tribune has bawled out the Indianapolis Star for stealing the dope from its column. The Tribune adds that it steals most of its stuff from the Frankfort Crescent, and never uttered a word against all the thefts we have made. Thanks, Tribune!

Woodrow Wilson's health is said to be improving. That is fortunate, for he will be able to stand the shock better.

ple." This assertion was made after Senator Kern had laid stress on the fact that Mr. Bryan wrote the platform at Baltimore as well as picked the nominee.

Senator Kern called the tariff unequal taxation. He said the wealth earned by the great masses of the people has slipped away until now a half earned by everybody in 125 years is in the possession of less than 30,000 men. He said he sympathized with the Socialist, with the Populists and the bolters of the Republican party who are in earnest.

The speaker reverted back to the time before the war when he asserted there was none of that which he chose to call class legislation. He declared the tariff originated as a plan to rid the country of the war tax burden that it was promised the tariff would be removed from the things the people used first but that it has never been done. Instead, he averred, it was removed from the banks first and then from other special interests.

He asserted that the Republican platform Gov. Morton wrote in 1870 declared for tariff for revenue only but that he was beaten down and the tariff was increased and had been ever since with each succeeding measure.

Kern quoted Senator LaFollette, and referred to him as "the greatest reformer in the senate and the progressive who is a progressive." He recalled that LaFollette had said there were 200 trusts when Roosevelt became president and over 30,000 existed when he went out. The capitalization of them when Roosevelt went into office was six or seven million and when he went out over thirty billions of dollars, much of it water.

The senator said he didn't blame trusts for voting for the continuance of a high tariff nor did he blame them for pouring money into the campaign fund to continue the tariff. He added that people had been reading the sickening accounts of the campaign contributions. He spoke of Taft refusing to let any tariff legislation go through before the schedules have been investigated by the tariff board.

He assailed Roosevelt for his attitude toward the trusts, quoting the third termer as saying that the trusts had become strong and could not be controlled. He recalled that Roosevelt said they would have to be regulated which is an admission, Kern said, that they are stronger than the government. He said two men were sent to Roosevelt while he was president to call his attention to the fact that a run had been started on a bank and that the country could be overrun with a panic if the Steel trust was not allowed to take over its only dangerous rival.

"This modern hero surrendered to the interests," continued the speaker, "told the steel trust to go ahead, sent a note to his attorney general, the panic was stopped and this coterie of men went on robbing the people."

"I see Senator Beveridge said up at Richmond the other day that if he had been president of the United States in this instance, he would have done the same thing only ten times quicker. God forbid that such a man as he shall ever be governor of Indiana."

Senator Kern classed the fine of $20,000,000 assessed against the Standard Oil Company by the Roosevelt administration as a joke, and said that if it had been paid, John D. Rockefeller would have increased the price of oil three cents and "laughed at you suckers for having to dig a little harder to pay his fine."

The assertion of Kern that Roosevelt prosecuted the Beef trust seven years without a judgment brought a laugh. He declared all trust organizers are originals under the provisions of the Sherman anti-trust law and should prosecute as such.

temerity to return to China a few years ago. He appeared to think either that his crime had been forgotten or that knowledge of it was limited to the Southern provinces, for in the early fall of 1903, under one of his many aliases, he arrived at Peking, by way of the Trans-Siberian Railway.

The doctor and I exchanged glances.
It was odd how confirmation of the error he had already avowed should thus come about from the lips of one who knew nothing of his story of a shattered friendship.

"Cleverly enough, Moran happened to be in the city at the time and every arrangement was made to capture the long-sought prey and convey him to the globe; for it seems that McNish had not only made off with his share of the receipts of their joint enterprise, but had left him with a ruined lot of debts to settle as well. There was something, too, I believe, about a Chinese woman whose loyalty to Moran, McNish undermined, but I confess that part of the story was not very clear to me. At all events Soy, the half-breed, and Moran, the Irishman, who appears to have been a roving blade, a sort of soldier of fortune with some talent for painting, became the prime movers in this relentless quest, in which they were backed by what is known as the Six Companies.
All the tongs, no matter how much at variance on other points, were a unit in this instance, and unlimited money was always available to prosecute the search."

A footman, appearing at this juncture with the inevitable tea paraphernalia, interrupted temporarily the current of Miss Clement's narrative. But our interest was such that we limited the cessation to the briefest possible period. Dr. Addison, whose professional engagements were being toppled over one after another, politely urged her to continue, directly her cup was in her hand.

"Think, Miss Clement," he said,
with an ingratiating smile, "of the rapt audience you have! I trust it is at once an inspiration and a compensation."

"It surely is," was the good lady's prompt acknowledgment. "And, by the way, I must not forget to tell you how this man, McNish, actually had the

It is possible that there is such an anesthetic as this, and we have never even heard of it before?"

"There can be no doubt about its existence," I answered. "I myself have experienced its effects, though I have never actually seen it put in operation."

But it was Miss Clement who was most convincing.

"I have never seen either it or its effects, Doctor," she said, "but I am willing to believe even more marvelous things than that where the Chinese are concerned. You must remember that as a race they are most jealous of their knowledge as well as their possessions. Just now, after all their many centuries of a civilization greater in some respects than our own, we are beginning to learn something of them and their ways, and I should not be at all surprised to discover that in chemistry, in medicine even, they have forgotten more than we know. Soy assured me that not only for days, but for weeks, he himself came and went about Mr. Cameron's—or, as he called it, McNish's—country place without being either seen or heard, simply by using this ether of invisibility. It was he who delivered the three letters. It was he who cut the head from the portrait, and it was he who broke the mirror;
and yet no one saw him on the grounds or in the house, and indeed there were very few who saw him in the vicinity. Again and again, he assured me, he could have taken his victim's life but that he was intent on inflicting a punishment more protractedly horrible than mere sudden death."

"Who wrote the letters?" I asked.

"Moran."

"I thought so. And Moran killed the Chinaman who worked for him."

"No; there you are wrong, Mr.
Clyde."

"Then who did?"

"Soy himself. He learned of how that boy, unable to control his hatred of the man who had slain some one or more of his kinspeople, carried back the head that had been cut from the portrait, borrowed a rifle from Mr.
Cameron's own gamekeeper, and shot the canvas full of holes. It seemed to Soy, then, that in spite of all his and Moran's careful preparation this would surely involve trouble, and that once more their quarry would slip through their fingers. And to prevent the possibility of any more unrestrained fervor on the boy's part, Soy beat him to death."

"I know Soy, or Peter Johnson as he called himself, managed the kidnapping from the yacht," I said, "but I shall never understand how it was done. Did he speak of that?"

"Over and over again. It was he who learned of the intention to take the cruise. At first they thought they would have to change their plans and carry their enemy off before he had a chance to take to his yacht. But Soy maintained that that would be too crude a method; whereas to let him think that he had escaped and was safe away, and then, at the very moment of his triumph, to snatch him from seeming security, would be the very refinement of cruelty the avenger so much desired. And so the properties were secured at some fabulous figure—I forgot just what they paid for that fast power boat—the scene was set, and the great act of the drama, with Soy still the star, was carried to a successful climax."

"But," I made question, "I don't see how Soy could take such a risk: If it had been McNish instead of Cameron, he certainly would have recognized him, when he was brought aboard from the disabled dory."

"He thought of that, but you must remember that in all those sixteen years McNish had never once seen Soy. He thought he had perished with the rest when the Sable Lorchia went down. And so Soy decided that in oilskins, apparently unconscious, in an open boat off the New England coast, there was not one chance in ten thousand that McNish would connect him with the cook he had left for dead in the South China sea."

"But McNish did recognize him as soon as he laid eyes on him in this house. I saw that myself, you know.
Miss Clement. He recognized him and was terror stricken."

Miss Clement smiled tolerantly. She was armed at all points.

"You did not know, I suppose, Mr.
Clyde, that that was not their first meeting," she explained. "Soy met McNish on the night you found him.
It was he who assaulted him, somewhere about Seventh avenue and Fifteenth street, and would have killed him had not the police arrived at the moment. The officers probably thought McNish was intoxicated and let him go, seeing that he could stand, and so he staggered on to Fifth avenue; and there you discovered him."

"No, I did not know that," I admitted, a little crestfallen. "What followed?"

"You remember I told you that Chinatown was in a state of frenzy, the next day? You can understand now, why. Soy, of course, reported that McNish had escaped from the steamer."

"What steamer?" I cried, suddenly realizing that the one really vital piece of information we should have obtained, had all this while been delayed. "What steamer? Did he give you the name of it?"

"Yes," I replied, "I have told the doctor."

"What you don't know, though," she added, "is how it was managed."

"We have been told something about amyl pearls," I suggested.

"Amyl pearls?" queried Dr. Addison, curiously.

With as much clearness as possible
I explained to him what I meant by using this admittedly inaccurate term.

"Incredible!" he exclaimed. "Can it be possible that there is such an anesthetic as this, and we have never

even heard of it before?"

"There can be no doubt about its
existence," I answered. "I myself have

Milwaukee Wis. Oct. 15.—As he was leaving his hotel for the Auditorium, where he was to deliver his speech of the evening, Theodore Roosevelt was shot and slightly wounded here last night. His assailant, who later gave evidence of dementia, gave his name as John Schrank, and his address as 370 East Tenth street, New York. Before Schrank could fire a second time, Albert Martin, stenographer with the Roosevelt party, and Henry F. Cochems, former football player at Wisconsin university, grabbed Schrank.

Colonel Roosevelt stood beside the automobile which he had been about to enter when shot and directed the policemen who were relieving Martin and Cochems from their struggles with Schrank. Mr. Roosevelt insisted on proceeding to the hall and going through with at least a part of his speech. An examination of the wound had done much to save his life. When he had come upon the platform at the Auditorium and drew the manuscript from his pocket during his first few words, the torn sheets of paper, showing many stains of blood, showed also that the bullet had gone through the manuscript.

Life Saved by Manuscript.

"You see," cried the colonel, holding up the manuscript so that his audience could see the bullet's hole through the sheets of paper, "it takes more than that to kill a bull moose." He then digressed to assure his audience that his wound was not serious. "Give all assurances to Mrs. Roosevelt," he called out, and he told his friends that after he had delivered at least a part of his talk he would submit to a thorough examination and have the bullet extracted. His surgeons, in the meantime, had consented to permit Mr. Roosevelt to proceed with his talk. When the colonel advanced again to make his speech he was greeted by an ovation the like of which seldom has been heard. His speech lasted altogether about fifty minutes. His address, needless to say, digressed from the written manuscript through which Schrank's bullet had ripped its way.

Again and again he stopped to take a sip of water. His physical strength, however, was not equal to the task that he had set for himself. Constantly throughout the address the colonel's friends urged him to cut short his talk, but he continued on. "Certain newspaper influences," he said, "were to blame for the attempt at the assassination. A weak-minded man had been influenced," he said, "by these unjustifiable newspaper attacks" and had determined to kill him.

Claimed to Have Spirit Message.

Schrank is a Socialist. From the almost incoherent tirade which he delivered after being arrested and from memoranda found in his pocket it is evident that he has been following Roosevelt for at least a week. Schrank is an undersized German, evidently mentally unbalanced. In rambling, incoherent statement he said he had tried to do his duty—that he considered it the duty of every citizen to kill a third-term aspirant, as that course would soon develop a monarchy. He claimed to have a spirit message from former President McKinley directing him to kill Roosevelt, who rode to power upon the assassination of McKinley. In his effects were found many inflammatory circulars, excerpts from anarchist and Socialist speeches.

Schrank had a narrow escape from being lynched by the mob which tried to drag him away from the police. As soon as the police, however, had got him clear of the mob they rushed Schrank to police headquarters. Although he had been shouting his wrongs almost from the time that Cochems and Martin crushed him to the pavement, it was almost 11 o'clock before Schrank would answer any questions. The police, who were searching meanwhile, came across a memorandum of the Roosevelt tour and other notes which showed that Schrank had been following the colonel's every move for some time. Next they drew from his pocket a proclamation which declared that Roosevelt or any other man "seeking a third term as president" should be shot. When Schrank finally told the police his name and address in New York he became quiet and finally settled down to tell more of himself.

"I was in the saloon business with my uncle in New York," he said at last, "when Roosevelt was police commissioner. Roosevelt closed up our saloon and I have hated him ever since." Later, however, he offered as his reason for the shooting his feelings against any man seeking the office for third term.

SWARM OF RUNS IN FIRST INNINGGave Giants a Game They Very Much Needed.*MARQUARD AGAIN MAKES GOOD

The Good Twirling of the Tall Left Hander for the Second Time in the Series Kept the Red Sox Out of a Game in Determinedly Fought Contest—"Buck" O'Brien Was Easy for the New Yorkers in Decisive First.

O'Brien, Collins and Cady; Marquard and Meyers.

New York, Oct. 15.—The doughty men of Boston were laid low by the Knickerbocker band of fighters when the Giants and Red Sox played their fifth game for championship honors here. The score, 5 to 2, was the most one-sided, or rather the nearest to one-sided, of any of the six games. Boston now has three games to its credit and New York two, four being necessary to determine the championship.

The total paid attendance was 30,622; total receipts, $66,654; national commission's share, $6,665.40; each club's share, $29,994.30.

The Giants swarmed into the home biv in the first inning with all the runs they made in the game. Buck O'Brien, the wet ball expert, was pitching a poor game, of which fact Manager McGraw took instant cognizance, and of which his men, directed by him, took prompt and full advantage. O'Brien's reign was brief. One innning was its length.

It was Rube Marquard who pitched the Giants to victory. For the second time in the series the Red Sox were compelled to succumb to the good twirling of the tall left-hander.

The Bostons could not solve Marquard's pitching more than to reap an insufficient crop of two runs, which, like the Giants' flare-up, was confined to one innning. And if Marquard had not fumbled a ball they wouldn't have had those two. Clyde Engle, the muscular albino, doing duty as a pinch hitter, brushed in those two runs with about the hardest hit the Red Sox made.

Pressed in Too Late.

Another recruit from the bench, Collins, whom the Giants knocked out of the box last week, did well. The Giants hit Collins but scatteringly. From a punching bag one week ago he became a capable performer the next. But he was pressed into service too late. The choice of pitchers which preferred O'Brien to him went wrong.

The splendid support which Marquard had in the early part of the game was of great assistance and was encouragement for him in his part of the work. Support tided him over trouble in the early innings, but once clear of the early jams, he shared equally with the supporting company in keeping the Red Sox in their places. Only one hit was made off him after the fourth innning. Only five New Yorkers reached first base in their last seven innnings.

Compared to what the outfields were called on to do, the infielders had a restful afternoon. The Boston team especially had a fondness for outfield fly hitting. Devore, Snodgrass and Murray shared fifteen catches among them. Murray and Snodgrass roamed the meadows as thoroughly as a bird dog combs the field for quail. They covered ground and they fastened to such balls as were volleyed their way with a violelike grip.

A catch by Snodgrass in the third innning was the best of the day and the best of the series. It was a mighty smash from Speaker's bat and was drilling its way to the centerfield stand.

There was a man on base at the time and nobody out. Had it gone clear it would have boomed Boston's stock greatly, for the least Speaker would have had would have been a three-bagger. Snodgrass can run and he sure scratches gravel this time. He was going at top speed when he caught the ball, and for a moment the heartbeats of those in the stands were audible.

It was not until Snodgrass stopped and turned around with the ball that it was seen that he had held it. Speaker and Hooper played their respective fields like the luminaries they are.

There were four hits of the infield species in the first innning, an innning which batted and babbled and burped.

EXPRESSED REGRET

Opposing Candidates Offer Sympathy to Colonel Roosevelt.

New York, Oct. 15.—President Taft was sitting at the right hand of Mayor Gaynor last night at a dinner which the city gave in honor of the Atlantic fleet, when the report of the attempt upon the life of Colonel Roosevelt reached him. Upon a request from the newspapers for a comment upon the attack on the colonel, Mr. Taft took out his pencil and wrote these lines: "I am very sorry to hear of the assault upon Colonel Roosevelt, and am glad to learn that no harm has come to him.—W. H. T."

Wilson Greatly Distressed.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 15.—When Governor Wilson was told of the reported shooting of Colonel Roosevelt he asked for more details, and seemed relieved when he learned that the colonel had not been seriously injured. "I am greatly distressed to learn of the shooting of Colonel Roosevelt," he said, "but I rejoice that the wound is not serious."

COLD-BLOODED TALE NARRATED IN COURTBridgie Webber's Testimony Corroborates Rose.

New York, Oct. 15.—On the witness stand the moneyed man of the Rosenthal murderers, Bridgie Webber, told a story of Lieutenant Becker's hars for Rosenthal, of Becker's savage insistence on murder, and of his own share in the crime that matched the cold-blooded narrative that Jack Rose supplied last Saturday.

Rose now and then displayed a trace of human feeling. Webber's story was as cold and emotionless as if it came from a frozen heart. Money, murder, the turn of a roulette wheel, friendship, revenge—no one thing moved him more than another. His voice and manner were precisely the same when he told about sending the gunmen to the Metropole to kill Rosenthal as when he admitted that he had immediately sent $50 to the widow.

His testimony was effective for the prosecution in that it not only corroborated every shred of Rose's testimony, but also supplied details which were more shocking in their regard to Lieutenant Becker than anything Rose had said. He took upon himself responsibility for the inside management of the murder—that and the financial details. He swore that Becker borrowed $100 from him with which to pay the gunmen and that he gave the money to Rose, who handed it to Lefty Louie and Dago Frank. Insisting that he had no quarrel with Rosenthal, he admitted that he was willing for the gambler to be murdered when Becker demanded it. And all through his testimony was a chill unconcern—a voluntary admission that he never paused when asked to arrange a murder. He merely told Becker that it was a serious matter. He came to court with a memory for conversations, for the details of foul epithets that was as remarkable as Rose's. His story of Becker's commitment to Rose and him after the murder agreed almost word for word with Rose's testimony as to Becker's exacting description of the dead man and Becker's language.

On Trial For Fifth Time.

Columbus, Ind., Oct. 15.—The trial of the case of Fred Wolf, administrator of the estate of the late Burney Wolf, in which $10,000 damages are demanded from the Big Four road for the death of Burney Wolf, is in progress for the fifth time in the Bartholomew circuit court here. At four previous trials the juries disagreed.

Shelbyville Residents, on Way Here
For Visit, Suffer Mishap Near Merristown.

MACHINE RUNS INTO A POLE

Steering Gear Breaks And all Occupants of Car Are Severely Shaken up—Finally Get Here.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Gillespie and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Roth and daughter, of Shelbyville had a frightful experience Sunday at 12 o'clock when the Gillespie touring car in which they had started to Rushville for a visit with friends, dashed into a telephone pole after plunging down a six-foot embankment about three miles east of Merristown, says the Shelbyville Democrat. The trouble started when the steering gear on the car broke.

The machine was howling along at a good speed and it struck the telephone pole with such force that it was snapped off even with the ground. The crash threw everybody from their seats with the exception of Mr. Gillespie, who was at the wheel and Mr. Roth was hurled fifteen feet.

All six occupants of the car suffered injuries, but none of them was seriously hurt. The worst injuries were suffered by Mrs. Gillespie and Mr. Roth, the former's knee cap being hurt and the latter's hands being cut and bruised. One of his hands was badly swollen today.

The party remained at the scene of the accident till four o'clock in the evening. The car had been put in running condition by that time, a mechanician being called from Merristown, and the party then proceeded to Rushville, where they spent the night. They returned to Shelbyville this morning. The accident caused them to miss a fine chicken dinner, but they more than made up for the lost time at the friend's supper table.

Fans Will Have Chance of Seeing Locals in the Final Game of the Season.

WILL PLAY K. I. O. LEAGUE TEAM

Halterman Will be on Ground For Rushville and Rest of Team Will Remain the Same.

Since it became known that Rushville would play at Richmond Sunday, local fans have been clamoring for a way to get to the game and so great was the interest shown that Manager Maibangh has decided to run a special train for the accommodation of the fans and those that wish to spend a day in Richmond.

There are no trains going from here to Richmond on Sunday and it is necessary to have a special.

The train will be run over the Pennsylvania railroad and will leave here at 9 o'clock, thus giving everyone a big visit in the Wayne county capitol. At first it was intended to take only the team but demands for a way to get there became so great that a special was ordered. While the crowd will not be near as large as went to Newcastle, quite a bunch of fans have stated they would go. The fare will be $1.50 for the round trip.

The game between Rushville and the Richmond K. I. O. league team will be the final game of the season for the locals. Considerable interest is being shown in the game. Richmond has a fast team and finished second in the K. I. O. league giving the Hamilton Krebs an awful nice for first place. Rushville has a chance of beating the leaguers and will make an effort to do so. Manager Maibangh will use the same line up as last Sunday when the Merits of Indianapolis were handed the short end of a 11 to 1 score. Halterman, the southpaw will pitch the game for Rushville and local fans pin their tails to him to bring home the bacon. It is known what Halterman can do and it is believed he can trim the Richmond bunch.

FIFTH TRIAL ON.

Columbus Republican: The fifth trial of Fred Wolf, administrator of the late Burney Wolf, against the Big Four, for damages, was begun in Circuit Court here this morning. Judge W. Donaker is sitting as special judge in the case. At each of the four previous trials the jury has failed to agree. The case originated in Decatur county, was tried twice in Rush county and has been tried twice here.

NO BOSSSES?

Muncie Press: No bosses in the new party? Beveridge at Marion told the Bullmoose county committee that it would have to put a ticket in the field — just as he has done in many other countries of the state.

Milroy Press: Walter Land, who formerly lived on the Frank McCorkle farm but is now living near Rushville is reported dangerously ill with the typhoid fever and he is being moved to a hospital at Indianapolis.

Simeon Linville of St. Paul a conductor on the I. & C. traction line, cut a large gash in the palm of his right hand Saturday while unloading trunks from his car. It required seven stitches to close the wound.

Car, No. 313, on the Indianapolis & Cincinnati traction was sideswiped as it was passing on to a switch near Waldron by another car traveling in the opposite direction. The east bound car was taking the switch when the side of the rear vestibule was run into before it cleared the main track. A portion of the rear platform was torn away, and the glass knocked out and one of the handles pulled off.

Muncie Press: Af Marion the speech of Beveridge followed another vaudeville performance. Double bill.

Noblesville Man Suspected of Setting James Frazee's Fertilizer Factory on Fire.

LOSS OF $4,000 IS CAUSED

Misfortune Visits Former Rushville Man Twice in Last Few Weeks

—Will Rebuild.

James Frazee of Noblesville, very well known here where he formerly resided, suffered a loss of between thirty-five hundred and four thousand dollars Sunday night from a fire of incendiary origin, according to word received by his relatives here.

Mr. Frazee operates a fertilizer factory at Noblesville. Sunday night a fire was discovered in the building about eleven o'clock. The efforts of the fire department were futile and the building and all of its contents were burned to the ground.

Relatives here understand that it is practically known who committed the dastardly deed. They say that Mr. Frazee's friends and the authorities at Noblesville will do all in their power to sift the whole matter to the bottom.

It is said that the evidence against the suspected person is enough to incriminate him. Whether or not he is an enemy of Mr. Frazee's is not known here, nor is it understood that his reason was for wrecking vengeance on Mr. Frazee.

There were sixty-two valuable hides in the building all of them were either burned up or destroyed by the fire so that they are valueless. Mr. Frazee proposes to rebuild the factory at once. The worst feature of the blaze is that Mr. Frazee did not have a cent of insurance on the factory, and the loss will be a total one.

Mr. Frazee has had more than his share of misfortune in the last few weeks. The latter part of last month he was badly sealed when a boiler at the factory exploded. He is just now recovering from injuries received then.

Mr. Frazee was formerly a city policeman here and has a large list of friends and acquaintances who will be sorry to hear of his unfortunate loss. He was employed as bus driver before acting in the capacity of a policeman here. He has been in the fertilizer business in Noblesville about four years, engaging in it shortly after his return from the south.
